

Trucking Claims FAQ

- 1. Can a client claim for financial loss following a truck that has been burnt or damaged during a Sasria peril?
  - Sasria does not cover any consequential financial losses following a claim under the Sasria motor section.

- 2. If a truck is burnt during a Sasria peril and the goods are completely or partially destroyed, can a client also claim for business interruption?
  - Goods transported by the truck must be covered under Sasria GIT section to enjoy Sasria cover, however, Sasria does not cover any consequential financial loss as a result of a GIT loss.

- 3. Does Sasria cover widespread looting of trucks by local communities?
  - Sasria is governed by insurance principles that guides and ensure best practice in the industry. One insurance principle that may apply to this scenario is “Proximate cause”. The client will have to prove that the proximate cause of looting was indeed a Sasria peril. All Sasria perils are available and listed on the policy wording, for reference purposes.

- 4. Can a client claim for security costs to protect their trucks and their loads on the road, following widespread burning of trucks
  - Sasria Security costs cover is not available for trucks or any other road risks, i.e. motor vehicles and goods in transit on the road. This cover is only limited to specified premises of the insured as part of the Property cover for Material Damages.
